

The Healthy Smiles program was established in 1997 after a needs assessment by Dr. Chester Douglass of Harvard School of Dental Medicine found that nearly a third of Cambridge first graders had untreated cavities. Healthy Smiles has been enormously successful in identifying Cambridge children at risk for dental disease. About 3,000 elementary school children, preschoolers, and toddlers are screened each year. During the 2010-2011 school year, almost one in six children was referred to a dentist for treatment.

Answer: Tooth decay

Cambridge Healthy Smiles Program

A Children's Oral Health Program in Cambridge Schools

- Oral health education in the classroom
- Free dental screenings at your child's school
  - Free toothbrush

The Cambridge Public Health Department wants your child to have a healthy mouth!

It's easy for you AND your child... because we are offering dental screenings at your child's school!

Why are dental screenings important?

Children should see a dentist two times each year for good oral health. A simple dental screening can identify a serious problem early so the child can get treatment right away.

Who provides the services?

The dental screenings are a program of the Cambridge Public Health Department. A dental hygienist or dentist does these screenings.

How much does it cost?

The dental screening is free for all children.

Do all children at the school receive a free dental screening?

Yes. If you do not want your child to receive a free dental screening, return the permission slip to your child's teacher with that information.

What if I have questions or want more information?
